It is a fine intact example of a provincial hall with projecting bays and portico motif of the Dickson Street facade one of its more unusual features. The Echuca Court House was erected in the 1870s as the Shire Hall and was purchased by the government c 1880. The plain exposed brick walls of the single storey brick structure are articulated with stucco mouldings. The three bay Hopwood Gardens facade has a small central Doric portico. The Dickson Street facade comprises a series of three projecting wings, in the central wing the Doric portico motif is repeated.
